

April 6,2022

Professional Development Meeting – Meeting Chat

- 00:20:57 D'Ann Williams (she/her): Food Print and other food considerations for climate change <https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0959378018306101>
- 00:21:16 D'Ann Williams (she/her): Country-specific dietary shifts to mitigate climate and water crises
- 00:25:51 Calvin L Norman: This seems like a really great program!
- 00:28:17 Duane Friend: I may have missed it, but how many have gone through the program?
- 00:31:31 Calvin L Norman: WOW! That's a great acronym!!!
- 00:31:50 Holly Abeels (she/her): Duane - I'd have to look back at the numbers but I would estimate about 50 people so far.
- 00:45:59 Nathan Scott: What was the name of the NSF grant once again?
- 00:46:46 Melissa Kreye: I just got the website for my carbon and climate education program online. check it out.... <https://sites.psu.edu/focce/>
- 00:49:26 Kristen Hychka, NYS Water Resources Inst (she/her): - AISL (Advancing Informal Stem Learning)
- 00:50:38 Melissa Kreye: It could also be that we were looking across different types of communities...
- 00:51:55 Glenna Gannon: Hi David, NSF has several directorate that fund a wide variety of research and programming. Within their organization, I think there is generally a larger effort to fund projects that work *with* underserved communities to create meaningful content, as well as projects that seek to offer innovative means of science outreach, education
- 01:00:13 Art Nash: Hi Maureen, Does a potentially, participating native need to be a registered member of a certified federal tribe?
- 01:07:52 Glenna Gannon: Sounds like an amazing program, Maureen!
- 01:09:03 Rachel Zevin (she/her): Thank you to all the speakers! I have to go, but I enjoyed hearing about your programs!
- 01:12:12 Glenna Gannon: Fantastic presentations today, thank you so much for sharing about your programs!
- 01:12:38 Amy Muise: Thank you for these presentations! Inspiring and nitty gritty educational